Roads need to be greatly improved to make car travel easier. Alternatively consider setting up public transport, start by letting each town run their own buses. They could paint them in town colours so that they contribute to pride in the town.

Scrap it all together, Bury doesn't need it. Manchester should go and build on their own green space and the leave the Lancashire and Cheshire towns (towns not districts) that surround alone to make their own decisions. I believe the mayor of Manchester (Burnham) has acted illegally as the establishment of the mayor was not approved by the people living in the affected towns. Councillors in Bury who have voted in favour of this have not taken the views of Bury electorate into account.

Anyone with half a brain would just build on the yet to be nominated green field site. The infrastucture in this area simple cannot cope with any extra housing.
