I am also fully aware that the housing to be built in those areas will not be affordable but expensive and only affordable for those who are affluent. Nice housing in nice locations are very profitable to the investors while the poorer residents will be housed in "sink areas" as usual. They will not even have the luxury of enjoying local greenbelt because the "haves" will "have" it. There are plenty of brownfield and mill sites which could be enhanced and converted as has happened in Manchester City Centre
