GM PLANNING AND HOUSING COMMISSION

ISSUES AND ACTIONS FROM GMSF WORKSHOP – 27 FEBRUARY

1. Approach to the GMSF 2018:

This discussion considered the general structure of plans and some of the key building blocks that will shape 2018 GMSF:

- Existing land supply – existing land supply figures (with a 2017 base) are due to be published shortly. These will need to be better explained, to avoid confusion and misinterpretation. For example, explaining differences between land-take and floor space figures as well as assumptions that have been made in calculating and compiling land supply figures and the number of housing units this will provide.
- Northern Powerhouse – land supply for employment in Greater Manchester will need to be matched to the wider ambitions of the NPH, especially in terms of rail investment and the delivery of other infrastructure.
- Housing – housing requirements will reflect the Government’s Local Housing Needs figures, with the Government response to last year’s consultation expected imminently. We will need a clear explanation of any differences between the requirement we set in 2016 and the one to be put forward in 2018 and to share the thinking behind this.
- Housing allowances – the methodology used to calculate allowances will be shared.
- Offices – demand for office space is being driven by accessibility as well as agglomeration, so will largely focus on city centre with the presence of attractive amenities as well some town centres.

Immediate Actions:

- GMCA communications team briefed on these issues and will develop consistent language in media release on land supply
- Hold a short member development session to explain background and assumptions informing the existing land supply (asap as these figures are published)

2. Developing outcomes and objectives:

This discussion considered what the plan is likely to deliver and how it needs to be focused:

- Links to the Greater Manchester Strategy – strategy for the GMSF 2018 is being re-written to reflect the new Greater Manchester Strategy. The scope and objectives for the GMSF will underpin a broader framework for implementing this Strategy.
- Ambitions for Greater Manchester – overall, the GMSF will need to be more ambitious with clear objectives, as a building block for rest of plan. For example this would objectives on transforming town centres, extending the international role of the city centre and universities, etc.
- Specific targets – targets will be included in objectives, reflecting a range of ambitions in the Greater Manchester Strategy, eg on issues like Carbon neutrality, transport, infrastructure as well as housing.
- Strengths and unique character of Greater Manchester – GMSF needs to pin down what people like about living here and what will make Greater Manchester a better place to live or work in. For example, all of Greater Manchester is much more accessible than London, university opportunities, urban lifestyles and attractions, etc.

- Existing communities – the Objectives in the GMSF need to be clear about improving the quality of life for existing communities as well as in providing new homes and employment land, eg improving the environment and conditions in existing built area.
- Relationship with local plans – diversity across Greater Manchester means objectives need to be able to encompass differences so that local plans can implement them in ways which will work locally.

Immediate Actions:

- Above points need to be reflected in vision, objectives and spatial strategy.
- Set up a small working group to develop ideas and cover work to date
- Hold a further session with PH Commission members (will be an additional meeting)

4. Presenting proposals and communications

This discussion considered communications and how the strategy behind the GMSF can be presented to reach more people:

- Communications messaging – need to learn from lessons of previous consultation and avoid concentrating on a narrow range of issues, eg brownfield-greenfield issues. Need to be clear on the benefits and role of the GMSF in its widest sense, eg the debate has to be about the need for people to have good homes.
- Preparing for the consultation – need for publicity and messaging prior to the start of the consultation, with key issues or information available in advance to help inform the debate and make it more constructive for all participants.
- Work with local teams – the communications plan and specific releases, etc will all be shared with districts teams and allow time for local interpretation of Greater Manchester wide issues
- Meetings – consultation meetings and events will be organised through districts, but will need to be promoted centrally as well as locally.
- Social media – a more active social media campaign is essential to the developing comms strategy
- Unique offer of Greater Manchester – the communications plan will draw out what is distinctive about Greater Manchester and our place in the wider world.
- Diagrams and maps - people respond well to diagrams and information presented spatially on maps or figures and these will be an important part of explaining and communication the 2018 GMSF.
- Greater Manchester's place in wider world – maps and images will have to look beyond the GM border, not just limited to GM geography.

Immediate Actions:

- Current work being developed and will be presented in light of the discussion.
